A CARD

With this issue of the NEWS-LEADER I have severed all connection with this paper having sold my interest in the business to Messrs. James R. Noe and Joseph Polin who will preside over the destinies of the paper in the future. It is a matter of sincere regret that I have been forced by ill health to retire from active business for the time being and to dispose of the NEWS-LEADER to which I had become fondly attached. However we feel that the interests of the subscribers and patrons of the NEWS-LEADER will be well taken care of. Our successors Messrs. Noe and Polin are young men well equipped for the business which they have in hand and I feel safe in saying that with the same class of support in the future as has been accorded in the past that the NEWS-LEADER will continue to prosper.

In retiring from a position which has put me in more or less close relationship with the good people of Springfield and Washington county it is with the kindest of feelings and good will for all.

Sincerely,
E. L. DAVISON.

WRECKED VESSELS.

Difficulties That Beget the Work of the Salvager.

What it means to save a wreck is something that few outside of practical men can properly appreciate. The wreck is a ponderous, unwieldy mountain of steel and oak, weighing between 8,000 and 12,000 tons, often dangerous for any vessel to approach, and this must be lifted bodily and floated from the decks of pitching, unstable scows and barges. The work may be submerged beneath fifteen or thirty feet of water and so store in that divers must go down and effect repairs before it can be raised. It may be a wreck so shattered that it is not worth raising, so that the wrecker's work consists merely in blowing up the bulk and removing it as a menace to navigation. Or the vessel may be fairly intact, but sunk too deep to make attempt at raising advisable; the wrecker's work consisting in salvaging valuable cargo and temporary repairs before it can be raised. Or, again, the wreck may be that of a steamer which has pitched its nose shoreward in a fog, finding a beach, plowing a furrow through the yielding sand and never coming to a halt until it is stuck fast all but high and dry, a helpless victim to the next storm that comes screeching up the coast with its breakers against her and crowds of ice breakers upon her back.

EASY TO MIX THIS

Prepare at Home by Shaking Ingredients Well in a Bottle.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, which is said to be a positive remedy for backache, of kidney or bladder ailments, if taken before the stages of Bright's disease.

Field Extract Dandelion, one half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here, who has prepared this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that "while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic affections with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a powerful action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to filter and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial."

A FIRE IN JAPAN.

The Victim Has Other Troubles Besides Loss of Goods.

An American missionary living in Japan recently lost his dwelling by fire. He described in an amusing way the police constabulary which his neighbors showered upon him. "We were deluged with visiting cards," he says. "They were forced into my hands by sympathetic inquirers, friends offering aid and sympathizing solicitors. The conversation with each came somewhat as follows: 'You have lost an honorable disaster,' says the friend. 'I have humbly caused a great disturbance,' I reply. 'Please honorably excuse me,' says the friend. 'I have done an unbecoming thing,' I say. 'I am sure that you should have come to call on me on purpose. Thank you very much. This humbly excuse me for being so late in coming,' says the friend. The energy required for such a conversation can be imagined by accompanying each sentence with a low bow and repeating the process about fifty times.

About 10 o'clock two foreigners escaped to face our next duty, which consisted in appointing to all the houses in our section about fifty. It was nearly 12 o'clock at night when our spoliary tour was completed, but our last visitor called at 2 o'clock in the morning. Calling began coming again at 6 o'clock and kept on coming steadily. During the day we received many visitors and paid twenty-eight or more calls. The day after the fire, together with our other tasks, including the recording of the stream of visitors which lasted a week, is better tinged than described.

"All day after the fire and for three days more people from all over Osaka and Osaka continued bringing sympathy from their families and presents of cakes and fruit and other articles. We can never repay all the kindness we received."—Chicago News.

His Dinner Guests.

In a volume published in London, "Fidelity to Fall Mail," there is this queer anecdote of the vagaries of social life in the capital: Some years ago an eminent personage accepted or suggested a dinner with a certain millionaire, at that time comparatively unknown. The first guest to arrive, lay out and to the host, but he would wait till some one else came who could introduce him, lagged in the hall. The second was in the same predicament, as were the third, fourth, fifth and other guests up to the ninth, who claimed to be "the only person" himself. Upon the eleventh being explained to him cheerfully said: "Oh, come along with me! I will introduce you all. I know him."

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites should always be kept in the house for the following reasons:

First—Because, if any member of the family has a hard cold, it will cure it.
Second—Because, if the children are delicate and sickly, it will make them strong and well.
Third—Because, if the father or mother is losing flesh and becoming thin and emaciated, it will build them up and give them flesh and strength.
Fourth—Because it is the standard remedy in all throat and lung affections.
No household should be without it.

Read this advertisement, together with name of dealer in your city, and we will send you a "Scott's Emulsion" free of charge. Write to: "Scott's Emulsion," 409 Pearl St., New York.

LOVE TRIUMPHED

Mary Harold's father was a farmer in a small way, and, although he could not afford expensive dresses for his daughter, he gave her the benefit of a fair education. Mary was by no means an ignorant.

Her father's only sister, Della, married a wealthy city merchant, and when Mary was sixteen she was invited to pass the winter months at their elegant home on a country hill. Mary's instincts and ideas were well-tuned and her tastes artistic. She liked soft faces and jewelry she delighted to wear. As Della's cousin she had her share of the family's wealth and she had the clear white and pink of her exquisite face and imagine herself some day a princess.

At Della's encouragement the girl in that she arranged her in the finest and best dress she had, and was proud of the sensation her rare jewelry now excited.

Mary's thoughts are best expressed by reading over her letter to Della, the letter that she received some time later. This letter, written by Mary, was the last she ever wrote.

Dear Lou-Oh, that you were here! But you wouldn't enjoy it, all I do. I am in my element. Aunt Della's house is a marvel of beauty. Thanks to her generosity, I am almost as much of a king's daughter. She will let me do anything I like, for she knows I fear I can never do by plan.

Let me whisper to you alone that I have two admirers. Of course there are a score of them, but I have only two serious ones. One of them, Clifford Mason, is a perfect Adonis. Oh, Lou, how I love him! I like him ever so much.

He's a gentleman, but, alas, notwithstanding all, he is poor. Aunt Della's house is a marvel of beauty. Thanks to her generosity, I am almost as much of a king's daughter. She will let me do anything I like, for she knows I fear I can never do by plan.

All Distress From Stomach and Indigestion Vanishes in Five Minutes.

Take your sour stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacy and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapasin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness and many other similar symptoms.

If you jump-life is tickle, and nothing tempt you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapasin.

THE HUMAN RACE.

Will Man Simply Shrink On the Face of the Earth?

A French statistician who has been studying the human race from a view of determining the height of men at different periods has reached some wonderful results.

He has not only solved some perplexing problems in regard to the past of the human race, but is also enabled to calculate the future of the race, the exact period when man will disappear from the earth.

The recorded facts extend over nearly three centuries.

It is found that in 1610 the average height of man in Europe was 1.75 meters, or six feet five inches.

In 1700 it was five feet six inches. In 1820 it was five feet five inches and a fraction.

In 1890 it was five feet four inches and a fraction. The statistician has reached the conclusion that the human race will disappear from the earth in the year 1900.

At that epoch there will be only thirty million people left on the earth.

To cure you, if sick, you say. But one medicine will not cure every kind of sickness, because different medicines act on different parts of the body. One medicine goes to the liver, another to the spine, Wine of Cardui to the womanly organs. So that is why
